Thomas, Fredrik & louise

Some people are questioning the existense or extent of climate change.

The belief that global warming is a "hoax" within the Trump administration is alarming. It's evident throughout scientific research that global warming in fact, isn't a hoax. The only way, I personally believe, the people can convince Trump to not withdraw from the Paris agreement is provide evidence of how we've ALREADY initiated change from past agreement and projects. It is shown through research that, although we've done a lot of damage, we've also made progress in taking back what we've done. Some countries have turned to more "green" solutions and have contributed to changing our carbon

Sandra, Mathias, Julie

One of our greatest concerns is that Donald Trump claims that global warming is a "hoax" and that this statement might influence people in the wrong way.

The President Elect of the United States, Mr. Donald Trump, believes that global warming is a "hoax". Trump also states that global warming as a whole is was not based on science whatsoever, but as a political consensus. This I believe is a terrible thing that our newly president is stating which ultimately makes me scared for the

It's scary to see that the president of the USA, who is one of the most powerful men in the world, wants to take such risky actions and stop the Paris agreement. He doesn't listen to other countries, which might influence not only America, but the whole world.

It concerns us that Donald Trump does not believe in Global Warming. This is a big threat to not only the USA, but the whole world. The fact that he wants to cut funding for the NASA's climate change budget, and instead invest it in researching Mars, gives us yet another reason to be concerned. Since this is such a big problem, we need to unite with other nations, stop this problem from happening, and saving the future of mankind. MAKE THE WORLD

Thomas, Frederik & Louise

Mr.trump vowed to cancel the Paris agreement, claiming that it would give foreign countries control over the energy usage of the United states . Many nations have expressed have expressed their concerns about mr. Trump`s statement . The Paris agreement was reached by almost 200 nations in December and, as of Saturday, has been formally ratified by 109 representing 76% of greenhouse gas emissions, including the United States with 18%.

Mr.Trump, it is very scary to know that you would like to cut funding to nasa in regards to climate change. many people believe in the idea that climate change is not real, but science has proven that it is and with you cutting nasa's budget

Sondre, Sara & Katinka

President elected Donald Trump thinks that climate change is a hoax. He therefore wants to back out of the Paris climate change agreement. The US are responsible for 16% of green house emissions, which will affect the world greatly. Many climate change fighters find Donald Trump as president a threat to the Global "health".

Franki & Samantha

According to Mr. Frydenberg, "the United States is a global leader and what it does has a major impact on other country's thinking." We think it is detrimental towards our country as a whole to have a President who believes that climate change is a hoax because scientists have proven it is a real predicament. Therefore, having a President who doesn't believe we are facing these problems is not

3, 2, 1...GO!

Write your sentences in the correct columns.

Column 1: What are 3 main points presented in the reading you selected in the last lesson? Write 3 complete sentences.	Column 2: Either 2 struggles the main character faces or 2 controversial ideas the author presents. No matter which you choose, write 2 complete sentences.	Column 3: How does this reading relate to the Essential Question: What does it mean to see? Write 1 sentence.
In my reading, three main points could be taken out. the first is that even though someone is blind, that doesn't mean that they aren't worth less than someone who can see. the second is that all people can be cared about, and the third is to never give up on life	in my reading, the character was able to see, but when he was fourteen, he lost his vision and had to relearn everything. he also went to a boarding school where his parents didn't ge to see him during the week.	It relates to the question because they all have or had an issue with seeing in their life spand
